George Smith is based out of the firm's Raleigh office, where he practices in the areas of economic development, local government, and state and local taxation. George's economic development practice focuses on representing companies seeking to relocate or expand operations in the region, including site selection and negotiating with the state and local officials on economic development incentives. His experience also includes representing local and regional economic development programs on regulatory and public policy matters. For tax-related matters, George concentrates on representing companies and individuals before the North Carolina Property Tax Commission, administrative and regulatory boards and commissions, and the General Assembly and Executive branch. Additionally, George has significant experience in commercial real estate, financial services, and general corporate matters.

George earned his law degree from the University of South Carolina School of Law and his undergraduate degree from North Carolina State University.

Recognition
