Nexsen Pruet is pleased to announce the addition of Julie Medich, an experienced corporate and real estate attorney, to the firm's Charleston, South Carolina office.

"We are proud to add such a dynamic and knowledgeable attorney like Julie to the Charleston office," says Paul A. Dominick, Charleston Office Managing Partner. "Julie is an award winning corporate attorney committed to her clients' success, developing the legal field, and leading her community. We look forward to the superior service she will provide our clients."

About Julie Medich

Julie counsels clients on a full range of commercial real estate and corporate transactional matters with a focus on real estate acquisition, sales and loan work, contract negotiation, corporate formation and mergers and acquisitions. Since 2009, Julie has been listed in Best Lawyers in America for Corporate Law as well as for Mergers and Acquisitions since 2013. She is recognized for being a versatile and resourceful business and commercial real estate attorney dedicated to the success of her clients' ventures.

Prior to joining Nexsen Pruet, Julie worked with a mid-sized southeast law firm where she led the corporate practice group. Julie also clerked for the Hon. David Harwell, former Chief Justice of the South Carolina Supreme Court, and for the Hon. Jean H. Toal, former Chief Justice of the South Carolina Supreme Court. She was a certified public accountant with PriceWaterhouse in Chicago prior to attending law school. Julie is regularly involved throughout the Charleston community, having served as a member and board member for multiple organizations and non-profits.
