Nexsen Pruet – the regional law firm with international strength – is bringing innovation to traditional contract review services with the launch of NPcontracts³⁶⁰.

The new service offers a team of Nexsen Pruet attorneys and specially trained professionals to analyze contract provisions through a multi-pronged process that leverages experienced lawyers, artificial intelligence and advanced legal process outsourcing techniques. The model enables a higher level of risk management than automated analysis can provide alone, delivering to businesses a more efficient and accurate option for contract review.

Peter Santos, Managing Member of Professionals for Nexsen Pruet, helped lead the effort to bring this unique solution to the market. He said the oversight by firm attorneys is what uniquely positions NPcontracts³⁶⁰ as an innovative offering.

“There are a number of features that make NPcontracts³⁶⁰ attractive, from guaranteed turnaround times with options for expedited services and flexible payment structures,” he explained. “However, clients benefit most when the attorneys who understand their legal priorities and organizational objectives are also the ones managing the contract review component of legal process outsourcing. It brings client service to the next level, and it enables us to deliver a comprehensive risk management solution that you would be hard-pressed to find elsewhere in today’s market.”

Through NPcontracts³⁶⁰, Nexsen Pruet tailors programs to minimize risk and assure compliance with corporate policies. Clients can use the firm’s recommended review standards or work together with the contracts team to build analysis criteria specific to their business and risk tolerance.

By combining legal project management best practices with technological innovation, Nexsen Pruet applies those standards in a way that ensures speed and quality – delivering a hybrid of efficiency in the review, analysis, and negotiation of legal agreements.
